Manager Commentary

President Trump's return to the geopolitical stage stirred uncertainty and is unsettling markets. Trump's policies appear to be inconsistent with respect to tariffs and fiscal spending cuts. The duration of U.S. tariffs will dictate their economic impact, influencing consumer and business sentiment, and weakening employment, worsened by government spending cuts under DOGE.

International equities have outperformed U.S. indices this year, driven by capital outflows, tighter liquidity, and investor recalibration in response to Trump's policies.

Geopolitical tensions, weaker U.S. consumer confidence, sticky inflation (0.3% in January), and a flash GDP report showing 2.5% year-on-year growth compounded challenges. Interest rates are unlikely to be cut until later this year, and the VIX Volatility Index spiked up. While volatility can be unsettling, it is often a prerequisite for achieving higher long-term returns. Our managers maintain portfolio risk at predefined levels.

PCE inflation, the Fed's preferred measure, sits at 2.5% and the Truflation gauge at 1.35% points to lower upcoming inflation prints. The robust Q4 earnings season saw 74% of S&P 500 companies exceed forecasts. While technology underperformed, the healthcare and energy sectors are rebounding.

Drawing parallels to Trump's first term, a stronger dollar and higher bond yields initially gave way to stimulative policies supporting trade and equities. Efforts to reduce U.S. debt— including monetising assets and cutting costs — are underway, with the Department for Government Efficiency reporting $155 billion in savings.

In Europe, despite economic and political challenges, German stocks reached record highs, buoyed by expectations of defence spending. Diversified earnings across regions continue to drive performance, reinforcing our commitment to European equities despite the broader economic backdrop.

In the UK, inflationary pressures are rising, with the Bank of England revising 2025 GDP growth down to 0.75% due to a weaker labour market and moderating wage growth. Inflation is expected to peak at 3.7% in Q3 before easing, amid modest interest rate cuts, echoing 1970s stagflation.

In Japan, stronger consumer spending is needed to sustain inflation targets, but rising energy and food prices complicate the Bank of Japan's cautious approach. China faces a slowdown, with 5% GDP growth hindered by weak demand and property sector struggles. Though policy stimulus and stock market recovery point to some change in Chinese policy.

The tech sector and U.S. equities saw weak returns, while European funds, dynamic bond funds, and income funds delivered positive performance.

Globally, portfolios benefited from higher cash positions and European equities. We remain confident in resumed growth after this period of turbulence and policy uncertainty.

Risk remains anchored firmly in line with relevant volatility corridors.
